

WOMAN TRUE TO HER HUSBAND

Dennis A. Hurley, Charged With Shooting Up Hotel, May Not Be Punished.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
CHARLOTTE, N. C., August 19.—An unexpected turn took place to-day in the case of Dennis A. Hurley, a former Charlotte society man, charged with attempting to kill his wife in their apartments at the Buford Hotel here some weeks ago, when the grand jury in the Mecklenburg Superior Court brought in a true bill against Hurley for shooting up the building in which the alleged assault occurred. The indictment is brought under recent legislative enactment, making it an indictable offense for any person to discharge any building by shooting into it with a pistol or shotgun. In this case bullets from Hurley's revolver are alleged to have entered the ceiling and door of the room occupied by the couple at the hotel. It was stated after the shooting that Mrs. Catherine Jordan Hurley would testify against her husband in the original charge, but it is said now that she will refuse to testify hence a new turn in the affair. Mr. Hurley is said to be in a local hospital awaiting trial.

KEEN-NOSED LITTLE DOG SAVES CAST AWAY FROM WATERY GRAVE

NEW YORK, August 19.—Mans Peterson, the seaman who was washed from the deck of the three-masted schooner Arlington while that vessel was breaking up off Long Beach, Long Island, and just before the captain and the rest of the crew were rescued, in sight of the summer residents of that place, was picked up yesterday morning at 8 o'clock fifteen miles southeast of Atlantic Highlands, after having been on a twelve by eight foot piece of the Arlington's deck for twenty-seven hours, with neither food nor water except a few mussels.

The vessel that found him was the fishing schooner Irene May, of this port, and the seaman was landed at the Fulton Market pier at noon yesterday, hardly any worse for his experience.

The most peculiar part of the rescue of Peterson centers around a black dog on board the Irene May. This dog, a water spaniel, smelled the seaman on the raft an hour before Captain John Erickson caught sight of the ship that Peterson was waving as he stood on his float.

According to Peterson's story, told in the forecastle of the Irene May while he was putting on new clothes bought for him by Captain Erickson, he had just fastened a line, shot from shore by the life savers at Long Beach, to a stay when a sea washed him overboard. It was the third line the life savers had shot, the only one that dropped on the vessel, and it was the line that brought about the rescue.

It is charged that Jones is a suitor for the hand of Jennie Cole, and because the girl will not marry him he threatens to put an end to her. His case will come up before Squire Cheatham this morning.

I. J. Smith was summoned to appear before Squire Cheatham this morning to answer to the charge of Sabbath-breaking. The warrant states that Smith sent three men to work all day last Sunday on a stone quarry owned by him near Forest Hill Park. Mr. Smith acknowledges the charge, but claims it was an act of necessity; that the men were not working the quarry, but were only repairing machinery.

Prisoners Have Picnic.
Deputy Sheriff Martin gave his prisoners a little outing yesterday, and allowed them to stretch their muscles and whet their appetites by cleaning up the courthouse green.

Funeral of Mr. Overby.
The funeral of James W. Overby will take place from the residence of his son, J. S. Overby, 263 East Seventh Street, this morning at 10 o'clock. The interment will be in Maury Cemetery. The following will act as pall-bearers: Captain J. A. Lipscomb, L. M. Crump, John G. W. Smith, T. H. Smith and M. J. Moore.

Another Victim of Cupid.
Harry Woodruff and Miss Kate Lane, of Forest Hill, were married last night at the residence of the bride, Rev. D. G. Lancaster, of Oak Grove Baptist Church, officiated. The young couple will make their home at Forest Hill.

Personal and Briefs.
The excursion of the Junior Order of American Mechanics on the steamer Pocahontas to Dutch Gap, which took place last night, was well attended and a complete success.

Bernard, the ten-year-old son of A. T. Traylor, 2115 Everett Street, is very ill with typhoid fever.

Miss Henrietta Chapiro, who lately arrived from Lynchburg, where she has been attending school during the past session, is ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jacob Levy, 1803 Hull Street.

News of Manchester

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1102 Hull Street.
There seems to have been something of a mad dog scare in the neighborhood of Swansboro within the last few days, and yesterday a Times-Dispatch reporter went to Chief of Police Lipscomb, who generally keeps in touch with current happenings in and around town, to inquire if he knew anything in regard to the matter.

"Yes, sir," replied the captain, "I know all about it. I have lived sixty years, and that one was the first real mad dog I ever saw."

It appears that Captain Lipscomb was walking up Hull Street with his friend, Joe Vassar. Meeting County Officer Watts on a corner, they stopped to greet him. Another pedestrian meandering quietly by, apparently in peaceful meditation, was a cadaverous looking yellow cur standing about two hands high, and whose estimated weight was about four and a half pounds.

It seems that just at this time some one called Officer Watts by name, and immediately the animal, apparently terrified, fled swiftly down Hull Street in the direction of Cowardin Avenue. Officer Watts, always alert and on the job, started in hot pursuit. Captain Lipscomb states that the actions of the dog at that time would certainly indicate that his condition was, to say the least, abnormal, and he gave as his diagnosis that his malady was a species of acute paranoia superinduced by extreme fright, inspired by hearing the name of the county officer. However that may be, the demoralization along Hull Street was absolute and complete, and shop doors, vacant lots and trees, as asylums of refuge, were at a premium. But such was the speed of pursuit and pursuers that the excitement was not centred many seconds in any one place. Reaching the Petersburg Turnpike, the animal sped madly out that thoroughfare, headed for the open country, and yesterday a Times-Dispatch reporter went to Chief of Police Lipscomb, who generally keeps in touch with current happenings in and around town, to inquire if he knew anything in regard to the matter.

"Yes, sir," replied the captain, "I know all about it. I have lived sixty years, and that one was the first real mad dog I ever saw."
